Wacky treatment's a real gas!

SNIFFING A MIRACLE: These sickly travelers are hoping a good whiff of gas up their nostrils will cure what ails 'em.

SICK? STICK A HOSE-UP YOUR NOSE!

By FELIX DALVALLE

Daffy doctors are actually sending sick patients to the gas chamber to stick hoses up their noses — and the crazy cure really works!

Sickly folks the world over are flocking to the little town of Le Mont-Dore, south of Paris, to shove a long tube in the schnoz and sniff natural gases from the town's hot springs.

"It may look funny, but this is a serious business, because the gases relieve a large number of ailments, from rheumatism to blocked sinuses," said Laurent Fabre, manager of the bathhouse where the gas is administered. "We have had some miraculous cures here, people who had suffered for years and years.

"Our patients come here, stick the tube in their noses, and voila! They are cured of their illnesses!" Fabre proclaimed.

Goofy gas sniffers are paying $360 to sit staring at the wall with a hose rammed up their beaks and tears streaming down their faces for three weeks.

The gas is 80 percent carbon dioxide, which makes your eyes water profusely, but is a very strong disinfectant. The rest of the gas contains radon.

"I felt a little silly at first, but the treatment completely got rid of my allergies, which were very severe," explained Lloyd Bentley-Owen, who traveled from England in desperate hope for a cure.

"No doctor or medication could bring me any relief at all, but after gassing myself, I have absolutely no problems at all," said Bentley-Owen happily.

For some sufferers, sniffing is not enough, so they try a gas mask, which covers their faces completely, or sit in a steam room where the spa water is finely misted for easy inhaling.

Americans addicted to their TVs

The United States is a nation of couch potatoes.

There is one television set for every single person in the country.

Other countries with populations who stay glued to the tube include:

- Japan — one set for every two people.
- Brazil — one for every five.
- Soviet Union — one for every 9.
- China — one for every 161.

North Carolina housewife dumps hubby after out-of-this-world experience

I had sex with a space alien — and it was GREAT!

By LAUREL HOWIE
Correspondent

Shapely mom Sandra Bestell was scared stiff when smooth-talking space aliens abducted her and made mad, passionate love to her aboard a gleaming silver starship.

But when her eerie encounter was over, the hot-blooded housewife asked to see the spacemen again — because they gave her the best sex she ever had!

"They were absolutely incredible. They took me to new heights," the busty lady gushed.

"Whatever those guys were, they were everything a lady could want in a sex partner — handsome, tender, powerful and very enthusiastic."

Starry-eyed Sandra, 31, was so impressed by the Don Juans from another world that she gave her husband Bob the boot after 12 years of marriage — because his lovemaking just didn't measure up.

"I never realized how lousy poor Bob was in bed until those fellows gave me a lesson or two," she said.

"Once I discovered just how great sex can be, I knew he just didn't have it — and I doubt that I'll ever find any man from this planet who does."

Unsuspecting Sandra's sexy escapade began late last year as she drove along a lonely country road outside Charlotte, N.C.

"It was just after midnight when I came over a hill and saw this giant silver spaceship sitting there in front of me," recalled the blonde mom.

"I put on my brakes and was sitting there kind of stunned when three handsome creatures came out of the ship and surrounded my car.

"I noticed right off how gorgeous they were. The next thing I knew they had pulled me gently but firmly out of the car and were leading me toward that magnificent-looking spaceship."

Once aboard the craft, the visitors spoke to awestruck Sandra in fluent English — and the silver-tongued strangers were quick to tell her what they craved.

"They said they wanted to make love to me, and at first I was horrified," she recalled. "I said I didn't think that would be a good idea, but when one of them started kissing me and taking off my clothes, I felt powerless to resist.

"There were six of them, and by dawn I'd given in to each one — and had the best time of my life. Their hands, their mouths, everything they had was wonderful."

Just before daybreak, satisfied Sandra was escorted off the spaceship and watched in wonder as the vehicle lifted off into a cloudless sky.

"They told me they'd be back and I should watch for them," said the love-struck lady. "And you better believe I'm going to do just that."

LOVE-STRUCK Sandra Bestell can't wait for starship's return. "Whatever those creatures were," she said, "they were everything a woman could want. They took me to new heights."

Drunks to watch autopsies

Officials in Tacoma, Wash., are close to passing a law that will punish drunk drivers in a big way. On top of fines and penalties they'll have to watch autopsies of people killed in alcohol-related traffic accidents, the officials say.

It's okay to pamper your pet, says expert

Pet pamperers aren't lonely weirdos — just lucky folks whose personalities mesh perfectly with their pet.

"There is something about pets and people where, if you find just the right pet and just the right person, the bonding is exceedingly close and almost instant," said Professor Jan Dunlap of Campbell University in Buies Creek, N.C.

People-oriented people are more likely to also be pet-oriented people, she said.

Circumstances and lifestyles also determine who is likely to pamper an animal. Childless families frequently pamper pets. Sometimes pets won't let themselves be pampered. Like people, pets have personalities and some are uncomfortable being too close to a human, explained Prof. Dunlap.

FAMED PSYCHIC'S HEAD EXPLODES

A leading European psychic was charged with murder after he blew a rival psychic's head off with the power of his mind alone!

"I've investigated murders of every description but this is the strangest, by miles," Police Detective Maxwell Mueller told newsmen.

"Psychics Daniel Hertach and Barbara Nicole literally engaged in some kind of 'mind duel' and Hertach not only won, he won big.

"From what I understand, they stood face-to-face and focused their powerful psychic energies on each other until something gave.

"That something happened to be Miss Nicole's head. There were brain, skin and skull fragments everywhere. It exploded like a bomb."

The deadly drama allegedly began to unfold when Hertach, 58, and Miss Nicole, 43, appeared on a radio talk show in Bern, Switzerland, and argued over which one was the best psychic.

In a fit of rage Miss Nicole threatened to kill Hertach with a "psychic blast" — so he challenged her to a duel. "Six weeks later we discovered Miss Nicole's headless body in an alley and Hertach was clearly our suspect," said Det. Mueller.

"When we approached him he said: 'I killed her because I had to.

"'If I hadn't, she would have killed me.'"

The coroner who performed Miss Nicole's autopsy said the deceased psychic died "following exposure to highly concentrated but unknown energy fields pressing on an explosive area of the head."

Expert paranormal researchers consulted on the bizarre case say the terminology is a fancy way of saying that Hertach "blew Miss Nicole's head off with a burst of psychic energy transmitted from his mind to hers."

Hertach's murder trial is scheduled to begin sometime in mid-April.

He remains jailed under a $500,000 bond and faces life imprisonment if convicted, Det. Mueller said.

Gal blows $11 million jackpot

Poor Helen Rumph thought the six co-workers she played the lottery with each week were going to kill her — because she never played the winning numbers that would have won them a whopping $11 million!

"They were really mad at first," said the Burlington Township, N.J., emergency dispatcher. "They were so upset I'm sure they would have liked to kill me."

The trouble began when Helen, who was the designated lottery-ticket buyer for the group of emergency dispatchers and supervisors, ran into a ticket outlet with only six minutes to spare before the drawing.

"We'd picked the numbers ahead of time from numbers we'd gotten from the New York lottery," said Helen, 38. "I had them all written down on a piece of paper.

"I had about 14 sets of six numbers each and since I had only a few minutes, there wasn't time for me to copy them all down onto the cards."

So rather than not play, Helen let the computer pick the numbers. It clicked out 14 tickets for New Jersey's Pick 6 lottery but unfortunately they were all losers.

Later that evening when she heard the announcement of the winning numbers, Helen thought they sounded familiar.

"Usually, I don't pay attention to the numbers until the next morning," she said. "But this was like something weird so I checked our list and saw that the winning combination was about 12 down on the list."

The distraught woman immediately called work to talk to one of the supervisors who plays in the pool.

"I could barely tell her what happened," said Helen. "But I finally was able to get it out. You don't want to know what she said. It was bad."

Fortunately for Helen, this story does have a happy ending. Even though she and her six co-workers would have won $651,000 a year each for the next 20 years, they've since made up and everything's back to normal.

"Everything's fine now," she said. "We're still playing the lottery together. And we always have another chance to win."

Daredevil driver jumps school bus over open drawbridge

Sixty screaming children miraculously escaped with their lives when daredevil bus driver Carl Pistel put the pedal to the metal and jumped an open drawbridge — while taking the kids to school!

Police charged the 35-year-old man with reckless driving but said he would almost certainly be prime-bound if a single child had been killed.

"Somebody up there was looking after them, that's for sure," said Lt. Paul Franck of the police department in Antwerp, Belgium.

"The children on the bus were scared and crying but there wasn't a single serious injury that I'm aware of. One boy got 14 or 15 stitches for a cut on his head." The mind-numbing drama unfolded after Pistel picked up the 60 first, second and third graders he takes to the Holy Cross School in Antwerp.

In his statement to police, the man said he was 30 minutes behind schedule when the drawbridge he was approaching started to go up.

"Normally I would have stopped but something inside me said, 'Don't stop — go!' " said Pistel.

"I could hear the kids screaming but it was too late to change my mind.

"We crashed through the gates and went up over the gate. For a split second I thought, 'We're not going to make it.'"

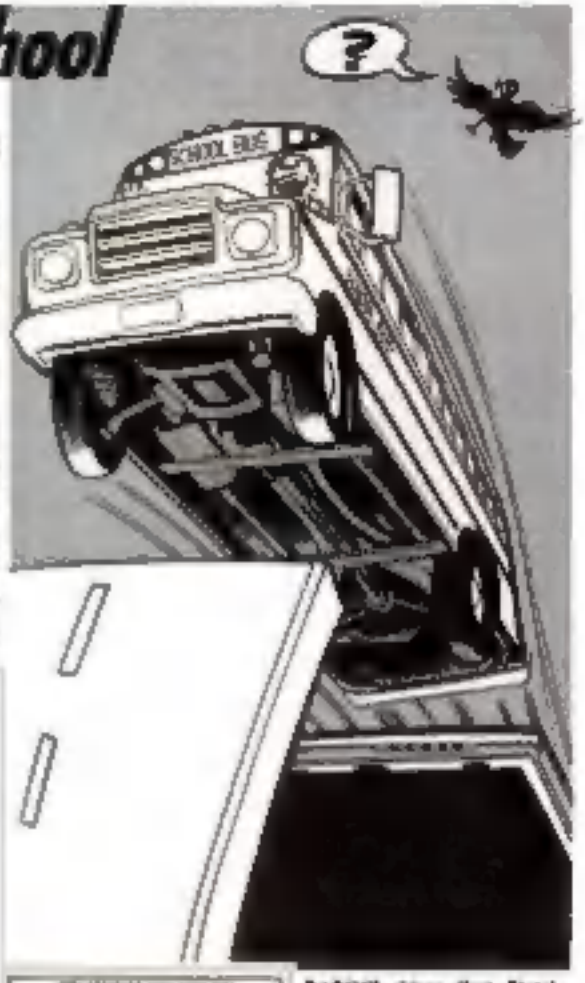
Police said the bus sailed at least 35 feet through the air and cleared the opening between the drawbridge's gates with room to spare.

Had the bus not made the jump it would have plunged 50 feet to the river below.

"Most parents worry about their children riding school buses and this is one instance where their worst nightmare almost came true," said Lt. Franck.

"I can't tell you what's going to happen when Mr. Pistel goes in court.

"But the schools have assured me of one thing — he'll never get behind the wheel of a bus again."



DARING driver Carl Pistel put the pedal to the metal and jumped the open span.

Gramps sends for mail-order bride — and gets 9 of 'em

LONELY Frankie Ross got carried away with the gals.

. . . and they land on his doorstep the same day!

Girl-crazy grandpa Frankie Ross was so eager to corral a mail-order bride that he proposed to nine luscious ladies around the world — and they all showed up on his doorstep the very same day!

By LAUREL HOWIE

"These girls just kept coming, about one every hour," greataunt flustered Frankie, 78. "I was going out of my mind, trying to figure out what to do with them all.

"One day I couldn't find me a woman to save my neck, and the next day I had nine of 'em — all of them just itching to entangle me."

The wrinkled rumor's woes began last fall when he sent his shoe store in Philadelphia and moved to a fourth floor cottage in Pennsgrove, Costa Rica.

"I had me a nice little house and some money in the bank, but I was lonely for a lady," the ugly widower recalled.

"Then somebody told me about these outfits that fix you up with mail-order brides from all over Europe and Asia and South America. That sounded like a darn good idea, so I sent away to every agency I could find."

Before long, frisky Frankie was exchanging letters with a dozen dazzling gals in 10 countries. "They all seemed so sweet and their pictures all looked so beautiful, I guess I just got carried away," the playboy pensioner told a reporter.

"The next thing I knew I had proposed to nine of those ladies and had sent them all money to fly over and move in with me. I didn't want to hurt anybody, but I guess deep down I didn't think any of them would really show up — and I just wanted to improve my chances."

The eager eldster informed all his love-struck ladies-in-waiting that he was fixing up the house just for them, and that he'd be ready to receive them anytime after January 31.

And on February 1, here they came — a bevy of would-be brides with suitcases in hand. The first to show was Maria from the Philippines. Then came Rose from England, Mie-Sook from South Korea, Teresa from Chile, Gina from Italy, Samantha from Wales, Gloria from Ecuador, Anna from Portugal and Mei-ling from Formosa.

"I couldn't believe it. They just kept pouring in," flabbergasted Frankie recalled. "And when they realized what was going on, they were ready to kill me.

"I didn't know what to do next, so I got them all rooms in a hotel downtown and promised to pay everybody's way back home."

But the bitter belles aren't ready to bail out of town yet. They've joined forces to hire a lawyer — and they're suing the nine-timing casanova for a whopping $1 million!

YOUR LIFE MAY BE IN DANGER
IF YOU'VE SEEN A UFO!

WHO ARE

THE UFO SILENCERS

Introduction by Haunted Planet author, John A. Keel

THE MYSTERIOUS MEN-IN-BLACK?

One by one those who have had a Close Encounter have been Hushed Up—WARNED—to keep quiet about what they know.

✓ Sometimes they pose as government agents, flashing impressive Air Force, State Department, FBI or CIA credentials.
✓ Often they arrive at the scene of a UFO landing before those involved have had a chance to tell their story to the authorities, indicating that these Men-In-Black can read—as well as CONTROL—minds.
✓ Usually they dress totally in black, complete with large brimmed hats that prevent their faces from being seen closely, thus keeping their true extraterrestrial identities a closely guarded secret. Their method of transportation frequently is an ominous-looking, very large, black car that appears out of thin air with no license plates and wide tinted windows.

[illegible]

FACT—The sinister MIB have appeared throughout history. In Celtic legends there were stories involving fairies the size of normal men who walked unnoticed among humans except for their black clothes. Like their smaller counterparts, they were said to be great mischief makers.

FACT—Following the assassination of John F. Kennedy, "government agents" wearing black suits that looked like some sort of uniform descended on Lee Harvey Oswald's old military barracks and confiscated his files.

FACT—Some UFO witnesses have reported spells of dizziness, lapse of memory and other symptoms after encountering the UFO silencers. It is as if parts of the human mind are being assaulted and the powers of perception are being deceived.

FACT—A former Air Force investigator noted that many UFO witnesses often revealed to him that they felt as if their phones were being tapped, their mail opened, and that they were under surveillance by some Unknown Force. The military denied any involvement in these instances.

[illegible]

There are now countless cases—numbering well into the hundreds—which show that these UFO Silencers are not of Earthly origin, but are probably a type of Alien Mafia attempting to keep their existence on Earth a secret.

In the newly published book, THE UFO SILENCERS, investigative reporter Timothy Green Beckley—known widely as "Mr. UFO"—traces the close association of these MIB with recent UFO sightings, landings, close encounters and abductions in America and around the world (including Russia, China, Ireland and Canada). These are some of the cases he reports on:

CASE #1—TACOMA, WASHINGTON—Three fishermen watch as a giant spacecraft explodes, pelting their boat with fragments. They collect samples of the metallic substance which are mysterious stolen from their homes after a visit by a "strange man" dressed in black who appeared to know all about the case, though it had not been reported in the press. Later, a military plane carrying a suitcase of the remaining fragments to be analyzed explodes, killing all personnel on board. The cause is never known.

CASE #18—LONG [illegible], NEW YORK—A UFO witness is chased by a black car containing two men in military uniform who pull a revolver and warn him to "be careful who you talk to about your encounter."

CASE #21—NEW HAMPSHIRE—A psychiatrist hypnotizes a young abductee, who tells of being taken aboard a UFO. Later the doctor is called by a robot-like stranger, who in broken English, says he should destroy all his files on the case before he "loses his heart."

CASE #27—PERTH, AUSTRALIA—A writer stumbles upon the secret origin for UFOs. Black cars appear outside his home at night. His files are ransacked. His girlfriend is attacked, and he is pushed by invisible hands down an escalator in a large department store when no one is standing near him.

CASE #36—A Texas researcher photographs both UFOs and alien pictures reproduced in the book), and his story is personally investigated by a researcher from the government who can find no sign of fabrication in his story. The rancher is physically attacked, hit over the head, and told to keep his "mouth shut." Later, his home is sprayed with machine-gun fire.

[illegible]

During his research, the author came across personal evidence that these strange Visitors actually exist, operating on a parallel sphere of reality. They are, he believes, a sinister form of interplanetary Patrol whose task it is to keep all information on UFOs out of the reach of the public. Beckley even managed to photograph one of these sinister "Agents of Darkness" while in the company of another researcher. These pictures are being made public so that all can see the importance of his story.

Here are facts and information so startling that they are deliberately hidden so that YOU do not know the truth about the arrival of Extraterrestrials on our Cosmic shores. Here is all the proof and documentation that the UFO Silencers—also known as the Men-In-Black—are not a figment of the imagination, but are based solidly in physical reality. 'We've forgiven him,' say parents

Dog keeps daily vigil at grave of boy he killed

The parents of a little boy who was killed by the family dog say they've forgiven the animal that now spends every day lying on the boy's grave.

"We had intended to put the dog to sleep, but unfortunately, that won't bring back our son," said Marie Horner, whose 3-year-old son, Alan, was mauled by Thor, the family's mongrel pooch. "That dog misses Alan as much as my husband and I do."

Little Alan was playing on the porch of the family's farmhouse located near Perth, Australia, when the tragedy occurred. The dog was apparently eating when Alan yanked on Thor's tail.

"We think Thor just reacted instinctively and attacked Alan," said Peter Horner, the boy's father.

Alan was bitten on the arms, neck and face. His parents rushed him to a hospital where he was pronounced dead several hours later.

"We buried Alan in the family plot right here on the farm," Mrs. Horner said.

"Thor was locked up in a pen ever since the attack, but somehow he got out a few days after the funeral. We found him up at Alan's grave, whining like he had lost his only friend."

Every day during the three months since the little boy's death, Thor has laid beside Alan's headstone.

"Once we saw how sorry Thor was, we forgave him for what he'd done," Horner said.

SNAPSHOT of little Alan and Thor taken a month before the tragedy. Top, Thor protective his still at grave.

PARENTS Marie and Peter Horner say the dog didn't mean to kill Alan. It was just an instinctive reaction by the dog.

BURIED ALIVE

Deaf mute survives 2 years trapped in tomb!

By DICK DONOVAN
Staff writer

Deaf mute Nevado Ffaco was trapped for two years inside a tiny tomb where he revived after being buried alive!

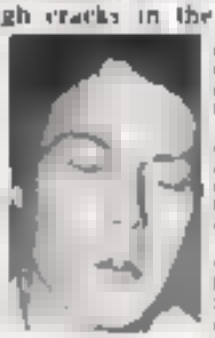
Amazingly fit after his eerie ordeal, the 27-year-old brickmaker said he lived on moss, lizards, earthworms, insects and water that seeped in through cracks in the tomb's brick walls

Ffaco "died" in March 1960, in his home in the Peruvian village of Puerto Maldonado. Unaware that he was only in a drug-induced coma, his family buried him in a tomb reserved for the village poor.

Because the graveyard is often flooded by waters from the nearby Madre de Dios River, underground burials are unthinkable in the village.

Instead, the dead are placed in above-ground vaults made of stone and sun-dried clay bricks.

And though the graveyard is crowded each Sunday with families who come to pray at the tombs of their departed loved ones, Ffaco, deaf and speechless since birth, could utter no cry for help.



Nevado Ffaco

Ffaco was found by village workers who were repairing tombs damaged by heavy spring rains and were forced to move Ffaco's coffin.

"At first, I couldn't believe my eyes," villager Fernando Orange said. "There, lying amid worn-out bones, was a man. I could feel the hairs on my neck start to crawl. I thought I was looking at a corpse that had risen from the grave.

But the corpse was pulling itself to a sitting position and with its eyes squinted shut against the light. It was the most awful sight I have ever seen.

I had known Nevado since we were little boys, but I didn't recognize him. His face was black with filth and covered with festering open sores. His hair and beard were shaggy and matted with dripping earth.

"One of the men with me ran screaming. From the tomb and another was paralyzed with fear and had to be dragged outside.

I also found it difficult to move. But the vessels in the tomb's rooms were enough to force me out.

So, all I could see home [illegible] to help that poor creature inside."

Almost three hours passed before a volunteer group from a neighboring community came to Puerto Maldonado. Without hesitation, he went inside the tomb and carried Ffaco into the sunlight that hadn't warmed his body in two nightmare years. Ffaco, who although he was tall had lost very little weight during his ordeal, was flown on a missionary plane to a hospital in Cuzco where his wife was later reunited with [illegible] mother and two sisters. There, through sign language he had learned as a boy, Ffaco told his thrilling tale of survival.

"We had been victims with the fever," his mother, Adora said. "He was given a drug to fight infection and he was not well then. We buried him in the tomb the next morning. We didn't know he was still alive.

"He says he awoke and didn't know at first where he was because it was pitch dark, and he couldn't see.

"But by feeling the sides against the walls, he realized that he was trapped in a tomb.

"He said he cried for two days before he realized that he would have to save his strength to stay alive. He was very strong in body and

"He dug a shallow pit in the earth with his fingers until he reached liquid and the pit was then quickly cleaned by seeping water."

Doctors said Ffaco's diet of bugs, lizards and earthworms was more than enough nourishment to sustain his life.

They said, however, that the festering sores that covered his body will leave him painfully scarred for the rest of his life.

"A key factor in his survival," a doctor explained, "is the fact that Nevado has been a deaf mute since birth. Unlike normal people, he was accustomed to silence and being totally alone with himself.

"Most likely, a normal person would have gone mad and the way or another — by intent or accident — would have died a horrible death."

Car crash claims her beloved — two days before the wedding!

'I married my boyfriend's corpse'

Beauty stands by open casket as her guests look on in horror

By MICHAEL KUMPLEICH

NEDJAH, Czechoslovakia — Death robbed beautiful Helena Masryk of her beloved fiance, but she married him anyway — as he lay stone-cold in his coffin.

The heartbroken bride was united in holy matrimony with the corpse of her childhood sweetheart, Eduard Stanz, in a bizarre ceremony. Stanz, 27, was killed two days earlier when a truck he was driving went out of control and plunged off a mountain road.

"Helena wanted to bear Eduard's name and she felt he might have wanted that too," explained the groom's grieving father, Michal Stanz. "It's really not for me to try to define her motives. We thought it would help her deal with her terrible heartache over his death."

The wedding took place in a church in the mountain town where the couple had lived all their lives. The pretty 20-year-old bride wore a full gown and veil and stood next to the open casket in front of the pulpit.

As weeping relatives and friends looked on, Helena repeated her vows and slipped a ring onto her cold and stiffened hand. Then the lovingly kissed her corpse grown, uttered a few words of love and closed the casket for eternity.

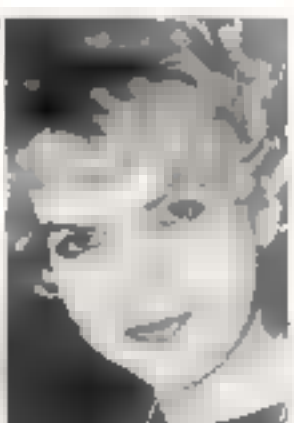
After the wedding the best man escorted Helena and the entire wedding party from the church to the small cemetery outside, where Stanz was buried in a touching funeral ceremony.

"I have never heard of a marriage such as this. But I didn't hesitate when Helena and Eduard's family asked me to perform the service," said Lutheran pastor Lubomir Serfenik. "It was a memorial to the deep love these two young people had for one another. It was a way of demonstrating that love can conquer death."

Some of the guests who attended the emotion marriage first learned of the groom's death at the church. A few were so filled with horror by the ceremony that they left the chapel immediately when they realized what was happening.

But most of the people who watched Helena repeat her vows felt deep sympathy with the grief-stricken bride.

"She and Eduard were inseparable as kids, so I see nothing wrong with honoring that bond after Eduard's death," Michal Stanz said. "Helena says she has no plans of marrying again. She has loved Eduard ever since she met him at the age of 5. She didn't want death to come between them — and I guess that it never will. In fact, she had the minister leave 'Until death do you part' out of the marital vows."



SHE KISSED HIM DEAD LOVER: Helena Masryk.

Ten ways you can blow your raise!

[redacted] hate 10 specific characteristics more than any others in their employees — traits most likely to prevent you from getting a raise, researchers say.

According to a five-year study at the Georgia State University, employers can't stand when workers:

1. Procrastinate. This time-wasting trait was mentioned more often by the 122 supervisors who participated in the study.

2. Pass the buck. Employers want workers who accept responsibility.

3. Say they knew how to do something — and then mess it up. Such people cause more problems than they solve, even though they are eager to please.

4. Lack initiative. Bosses can't stand it when employees refuse to put out that little extra effort to excel — and instead do the absolute minimum required of them.

5. Don't deliver. A boss feels he's been had if he gives an assignment and the work comes back sloppy or unfinished.

6. Are incompetent. The folks who try to fill a job that's beyond their abilities only cause problems.

7. Spread rumors. Bosses know that gossip can result in distrust and dissension among workers — and even cause an entire company to fold.

8. Go over their superior's head. Such employees are immediately viewed as unreliable.

9. Are always involved in personal conversations. Bosses understandably feel that workplaces are for work — too much chatting will reduce output.

10. Are lazy. No boss will mind if a worker who's feeling tired "counts" a little bit — but inactivity drives employers up the wall.

Here's a quick fix for the world's pollution problems

Pop a tire for clean air!

Tell Ed what YOU think

Got something to say? Shoot off to Ed Anger, America's most popular columnist with nearly 4 million readers! Ed's always looking for great cutting ideas from his fans on the hippies who hate hats! Map on the Ed Anger bandwagon — every week in Weekly World News! Write to Ed at care of The Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Avenue Lantana Fla. 33462

I've had some great ideas over the years but the old brain really blew a fuse the other day when I thought of a way to solve all this air pollution crap once and for all.

Just like old Tom Edison and the bright idea he had when he invented the light bulb, my notion is so simple folks will be amazed that it was never thought of before.

In fact, when I told my wife Thelma Jean, she was speechless for an hour, which is a miracle in itself.

Let's face it, folks. I may be smart but I'm no genius.

That's why this complete pollution solution to the world's pollution problem is so great. Everybody can get in on the act. Even stupid people.

Here's my complete plan:

According to the latest statistics, there are nearly 100 million pre-1980 cars, trucks and buses on the planet at this very moment.

So what, you say?

They're all sitting on at least four tires. That's what.

And that's not including spares!

Multiply four by 100 million and what do you get?

About 400 trillion cubic feet of good, old-fashioned air from the 1950s, 60s and 70s, for crying out loud.

My sources in the scientific community tell me that if this clean air from yesteryear was let out worldwide over a 90-day timetable, our air would be as clean as it was in 1980, maybe cleaner.

We'll just give every country a day to pop all their old tires. Mexico on Monday. Germany on Tuesday. Italy on Wednesday. Canada on Thursday and New Guinea on Friday and we on until we've popped every old tire on the planet.

This old stinky air we've been breathing would be forced right out of the ozone hole and disappear into space.

I'm proposing a POP-A-TIRE-FOR-POLLUTION movement that will sweep the globe.

I never thought I'd agree with those jelly bean environmentalists on ANYTHING, but even the hippies can get on the POP-A-TIRE bandwagon.

I can smell it now — the fresh air we breathed when the was Pres. Howdy-Doody was then on TV. Bess Myerson was Miss America and Elvis Presley was singing Blue Suede Shoes on the Ed Sullivan Show!

Muddy water cures cancer, AIDS, arthritis & heart disease — and it comes from a pothole!

By MICHIT McGUIRE
Correspondent

Thousands of people are flocking to an obscure village in Burma where muddy water, scooped up by hand from a pothole, is curing every affliction known to man!

The miracle water at the village of Kong Lam is credited with the overnight cures of such killer diseases as AIDS, cancer, typhoid and tuberculosis.

After sponging the water on their bodies, the blind could see, the deaf could hear and the crippled could throw down their crutches and walk without the slightest difficulty.

"When I learned of the miracles taking place here in Kong Lam I had to see for myself that the stories I heard were true," Japanese hydrotherapist Kenji Yoshida said in a recent interview.

MAP shows location of remote Burmese village where thousands have come to be cured by the miracle cure that comes from a pothole near the main village right

"But the evidence is overwhelming. I have actually examined a 62-year-old woman who was declared diagnosed as terminal. She had only weeks left to live.

"But she drank the water and the very next day she looked and acted as healthy as a girl not yet in her teens.

"She was taken to the university hospital in Mandalay where exhaustive tests revealed not a trace of the cancer that had ravaged her body. There is no way to dispute the evidence. It is incredible, to say the least."

Dr. Yoshida said he was so impressed doctors who confirmed the miracle cures of patients who were suffering from heart, liver and kidney diseases as well as diabetes, arthritis, anxiety and other afflictions of the aged.

The patients started up about a year ago on a dirt road only a few yards from Kong Lam's main bathing place where the villagers gather to buy the rice and fish that make up the bulk of their diet.

The fantastic curing properties of the water that randomly seeps into the hole was first discovered by street urchins who drank the muddy liquid and saw their cuts, bruises and festering sores vanish in a matter of hours.

Reports that a "magic elixir" had been discovered in the village quickly spread and all roads into Kong Lam were soon crowded with thousands of desperate outsiders, each seeking a cure for their afflictions.

"Several blood vessels in her brain had burst," said Dr. Laird after performing an autopsy.

"It's unusual for children to have strokes, but not unprecedented, especially under extreme conditions like playing these games," Dr. Laird stated.

Lisa's heartbroken mom said that her daughter had spent endless hours playing the games away from her, but if I did, she would throw tantrums and then just go to a friend's house to keep playing," sobbed Myrna Hyde.

"I decided I'd rather have her at home where I could keep an eye on her, so I let her have the games again," she cried.

"Some kids are subject to staggering amounts of stress when playing these video games," said Dr Laird. "They get so involved, they say that they'll beat the game even if it kills them.

"And sometimes, sadly, it does."

Stunned friends and neighbors rushed to confiscate their own kids' video games, fearing for their children's safety.

"I don't care if he screams until he's hoarse, my son's never playing those evil games again," vowed one determined mother.

Japanese wives treated like dirt!

Japanese men treat their wives like slaves — the women wait on them hand and foot, and accept their husbands' cheating in silence.

"Japanese wives are second class citizens," said Robert J. Smith in report on Japanese society.

And Steven Wolf, author of The Japanese Conspiracy, added, "If you're a Japanese woman, your role will take a back seat to your children, keep your house clean and be there waiting for you when you get home — even if it's 3 a.m. and you have a hangover.

"Once married, the men of your children. Keep your house clean and be there waiting for you when you get home — even if it's 3 a.m. and you have a hangover.

"Once married, the men

When they go out, it's with the boys, usually with co-workers.

"Wives are also expected to tolerate their husbands' extramarital flings. Men go to specialized entertainment districts where brothels flourish — a couple of nights a week. It's clear to Japanese wives what their husbands are doing, and they are expected to endure it.

They wait up for their husbands to come home, feed them and put them to bed.

"The woman's job is to make home safely for man's return to the best of her ability to bear him children.

"After a couple have had a few children, the wife continues sleeps on a room with the children, not with her husband," said Dr. Smith. "We see the Japanese as technological wizards but when it comes to how they treat their wives they're light-years behind us."

PIG HEART TRANSPLANTS FOR BABIES

Infants who need heart transplants may soon be getting their lifesaving donor organs from pigs!

Researchers are using pig hearts could offer a number of advantages in heart transplant surgery, including a lower risk of contracting AIDS and the greater likelihood of finding suitable-sized organs.

"One out of 100 babies born with serious congenital heart malformations might be suitable for a heart transplant from a piglet," said Dr. Jeffrey Platt of the University of Minnesota.

BLAST FROM THE PAST SHOCKER

Voices of long-dead medieval knights haunt tavern's TALKING WALLS

Scientists capture 700-year-old sounds with hi-tech recorder!

By SCOTTY PAUL

Amazed scientists have recorded chatter and laughter coming from the walls of a vacant roadside pub — and concluded they are the voices of knights and barroom wenches who died 700 years ago!

British anthropologists John Marke and Alan Jenkins say the walls talk in what is believed to be a popular Welsh dialect from the 13th century.

The two respected scientists brought sophisticated electronic equipment to the ancient pub in Kenfig Hill, Wales, recently after hearing village rumors about the voices.

"Local folks thought the sounds were made by winds whooshing through the old tavern. What we heard were the voices of travelers who stopped to wet their lips with a lot of the brew centuries ago," said Dr Jenkins.

Dr John Marke

Jonathan Burton

The incredible tape recording reveals the cursing and laughter of drunken knights, agonizing cries of anguished women and the mournful drooling of weathered barroom lowlifes.

"There was no mistaking the noise. I heard it with my own ears," said Dr Marke.

The two scientists used state-of-the-art sound equipment to record the voices from within the walls of the pub. "We recorded nearly four hours. When we played the tapes, we were absolutely astounded. Out came voices like we had never heard before," Dr Marke said.

Welsh journalist Jonathon Burton said it is easy to distinguish the voices and laughter from other sounds after hearing the tapes. "It certainly isn't a home," he said. "I could not determine the language, but the voices were certainly clear enough."

Dr Jenkins theorized the 13th century walls were able to hold sounds from the past because they are composed of a mixture of silica and ferric salts "just like those on a recording tape."

"There is no reason why the walls shouldn't be able to record sound," he said.

Drs Marke and Jenkins plan further experiments to be absolutely certain about what they recorded.

Gas-powered chicken grabber

An amazing new machine called a chicken grabber is an absolute shock idea. It can snatch and cage 5,000 broiler-breed birds an hour without breaking a single drumstick.

The gas-powered grabber scoops up the fleet-footed fowl in such a tender fashion that chicken kills and mishaps have plunged dramatically.

Irish inventor Jim O'Neill's mechanical marvel looks like a combine harvester, but it can step on a chair. It has reduced the time chicken farmers spend rounding up the critters for market by 600 percent.

We'll fall in love 6 times, says study

The average American has his or her first case of puppy love at 13 — and falls completely in love for the first time at 17, says a Psychology Today survey. Most of us will fall in love six times during our lifetime, the survey also found.

I married an old goat but now I need a young buck

Dear Dotti: I'm a 21-year-old woman who recently married a 72-year-old man. Unfortunately, he hasn't been able to perform in [redacted] bedroom and until we consummate our marriage [redacted] sex, it's go[redacted] to be nothing more than a sham.

What are we going to do, Dotti? I want our marriage to be full, rich and real. — Worried in Canada

Dear Worried: It's a poor excuse of a woman who complains about her man being impotent. Use your imagination, girl. If you can't get a real man of your hubby it's your fault, not his!

Confidential

Dear Dreamer in Waco: If you don't like living in a small town, stop thinking about it — and get the hell out!

Dear Sinful in Troy: I personally doubt you'll burn in hell for exercising a part of you!

Dear Popular Girl in Detroit: I'm tired of "busy husband," lady, but then is right!

Dear Lagos: There is little I can say if your mother-in-law says your sperm count — and ground you for a month.

Dear Lovestruck in Pearl Lake: I get hundreds of letters from LONELY females, but yours is the first crazy in the opening!

I must get in touch with an old lover

Dear Dotti: I had trouble with an old lover of mine and I'm hoping you can help me find her by printing her name in your column and asking her to get in touch with me. I'm tired of my wife and you're my only hope, Dotti. Will you help me? — Desperate in Utah

Dear Desperate: No

My stupid brat just won't shut up

Dear Dotti: I have a problem child and I don't know what to do with her. She shrieks and demands attention all the time.

I beat her repeatedly but nothing changes. What can I do? — Stressed Out in Quebec

Dear Stressed Out: I see nothing wrong with spanking a child but spanking who beats one to pulp. Get professional help you need, lady, and please get it quick.

You've got to learn how to discipline your child properly before you hurt her — and grow up to prepare for child abuse yourself!

Nutty date won't eat meat or plants!

Dear Dotti: The girl I've been dating for the past year has always been a vegetarian but lately she's started telling me that it's wrong to eat any thing you have to kill, including egg plants!

I'm worried about her health and well-being, Dotti. What should I do? — Carnivore in Albuquerque

Dear Carnivore: What does this pretentious ass — you? Drink the girl, lush, before your breath turns to pigeon poo!

I saw my friend stealing at school

Dear Dotti: The other day I just happened to catch my best friend breaking into lockers and stealing things at school. He doesn't know that I saw him because I hurried and tiptoed away. But now I feel guilty, Dotti. Do you think I did the right thing? — Curious in Montreal

Dear Curious: You should have arrested bloody murder and buried your accomplice!

How can I stop his awful snoring?

Dear Dotti: My husband snores so badly that the kids and I have to leave the house and sleep in our cramped little car.

I've tried to confront him [illegible] buddy is right on the spot. Since you didn't give me the bill for this, he or — and ought to be charged along with him when he's caught!

with his problem but he just shrugs it off. Help me, Dotti. What can I do? — Tired in San Diego

Dear Tired: The way I see it you can do one of three things. Put a clothespin on his nose, wear earplugs — or buy a bigger car!

Dotti will answer your letters — and tell a little a lot. Just write to her, c/o Weekly World News, 600 South East Coast Ave., Lantana, Fla. 33462

Dear Countess: I know this sounds crazy but my dead husband's spirit appears to me several times a month and we talk about my financial situation, our children, politics, what our friends are up to — everything.

Needless to say this is a great comfort to me and I'm sure I wouldn't get along without his counsel and visits. The thing is, when I tell people about my husband's spirit they look at me like I'm nuts. To tell you the truth, Countess, sometimes I think I might be a little batty, too. Is my husband really appearing to me or is he just a figment of my imagination? Tell me the truth, Countess. I can take it. — Wondering in Newark

Dear Wondering: Your dead husband does indeed appear to you but I don't advise you to discuss it with every Tom, Dick and Harry you meet down the pike. Continuing contact with a dead loved one is a very popular and private thing. If you overdose or [illegible] husband does not appear to you for a while, don't worry. He's just busy with other things.

Another logical explanation is that your husband will no longer be able to reach out to you from beyond the grave.

Dear Countess: I read about a psychic in another newspaper who claims to be able to communicate with dead people. Do you think she's for real? — Curious in Indiana

Dear Curious: You know and I know that she's a fraud but there are many people who are willing to pay for a chance to talk to their departed loved ones. Don't waste your money!

Dear Countess: Please tell me something that I'm not aware of but need to know. To give you some background I've had nothing but bad luck all my life and would give anything for the opportunity to make things better for myself. — Curious in Indiana

Dear Curious: You have bad luck because you refuse to let it happen! Quit feeling sorry for yourself and think the world OWES you a living. Until you change those negative attitudes, happiness will always elude you.

Amazing new pill will make you happier & sexier!

by SUSAN JAMISON

Doses of an amazing love hormone can make people friendlier, improve family relations, combat shyness and even cure sexual problems, new research shows, and a "love" pill is currently being developed.

The hormone, called oxytocin, is released naturally into the brain and bloodstream of man and animals during sexual intercourse. When administered in nose drops or combats shyness by reducing anxiety and increases sexual chemistry, making people feel happier and wiser.

"It is a tranquilizer but more," explained Dr. Jack Caldwell, a professor of psychiatry at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill. "It produces pleasant feelings. It makes people feel friendly.

"People who have taken oxytocin by nose drops have been more interested in sex and more functional. It improves mother-infant interactions and has an effect on social relationships, too."

The oxytocin hormone is produced naturally by a tiny gland at the base of the brain. It is produced by both sexes during love-making, helping to stimulate sexual arousal and climax.

It has a role in childbirth and breast feeding and is secreted during almost every pleasurable human experience.

In animals, research shows the hormone encourages mothers to take loving care of their young and fathers to help out around the nest.

It even makes animals more sociable, making them more receptive to the company of others and encouraging them to huddle close together affectionately, say scientists.

Some studies of the wonder drug have shown that even with sexual problems between millionaire love makers after doses of oxytocin, scientists say a love pill is in the works.

"It might really be the joy juice for sex problems," Dr. Caldwell said.

"But it will be a while before it's available."

SEX FIEND RAPES GIRL, 11, HE MET ON ADULT PHONE LINE

By JACK ALEXANDER

An 11-year-old girl sneaked behind her mother's back and talked to a man more than twice her age on an adult date line phone call — and the creep came to her house and raped her, say police.

"She made the mistake of giving the man her address and he paid her a visit when her mother wasn't home — and he brought a friend," said Detroit police spokesman Allene Ray.

The girl's mother had placed a block on calls to all but phone services, but the "party line" kept a local number that could be dialed.

People can talk and arrange dates on the "party line." The girl got the number from a classmate.

The schoolgirl called on a Friday night when her mother wasn't home and the man gave her a second number where he could be reached.

"She spoke to the man again on Saturday and gave him her address. Later that day, he dropped by her house with another man," said Officer Ray.

The two men have been charged by police with raping the girl that day while her mother was away. [illegible] "What has happened to a very, very unfortunate situation," said Michigan Bell spokesman [illegible] "People who use these services can talk as will permitted they do not use profanity or unlawful drugs or sex."

Secretary fired — for being too happy!

By LAUREL GOWIE

Lighthearted Lisa Jones was a jittery, joking secretary who delighted co-workers with her quirk wit and jovial grin — till her boss has fired her for being too happy!

"She's the kind of person who always has a lot of personal problems, and it just drives him crazy to see somebody working so hard and enjoying life so much," Baldwin quoted Francis told a reporter in Detroit.

"He was always on Lisa's back, telling her to wipe the smile off her face and get back to work when she was already working her tail off."

Most of the company's 83 employees have signed a petition demanding that happy-go-lucky Lisa be rehired.

But the outraged lady says she probably wouldn't go back even if stick-in-the-mud Sammy came begging.

"I have my friends there, but who wants to work for an old grouch who thinks it's a sin to smile?" she said with a grin. "I'm a naturally cheerful person, and I can't help that.

"So I don't want to go back there and give the guy a heart attack by being too happy, for Pete's sake."

Does your mate lie like a rug?

. . . here's how to tell

By STEVE WOOD

You can tell when your mate is lying with these tips from an expert.

"Most liars can fool most people most of the time. But the most reliable clues are those responses a liar makes instinctively and which he has little or no control over," explained Dr Paul Ekman, a professor of psychology.

For example, a person's voice usually rises an octave and gets louder when he lies, he explained.

And look out for a false smile, which comes and goes rapidly. A false smile is always all the face, while a genuine smile fades away more gradually.

Also, watch your partner's eyes during a smile. In a false smile, the eye muscles are often used less than in a real smile.

Another good tip-off: Does your mate is lying to you in this display of inappropriate feelings or reactions, said Dr Ekman.

When a person lies, he often feels fear or worry — and you can spot these emotions right on his face if you know what to look for.

A lying person shows fear by raising the eyebrows and pulling them together, according to Dr. Ekman.

"Not a single person we've tested can produce this movement deliberately," revealed Dr. Ekman, author of Telling Lies — Clues to Deceit in the Marketplace Politics and Marriage.

And a lying person who is worried "will lift just the latter part of his eyebrows," the expert said.

"Ordinarily this movement will appear despite a person's best attempt to conceal these feelings."

So if, for example, your spouse says that he's working late at the office, you might ask him, "Why weren't you there when I called this evening?"

If you spot fear or worry on his face then you know something's fishy.

But Dr Ekman warned that a single clue isn't enough to determine when a person is lying.

"If a facial clue indicates that your mate is lying, you should try to confirm this with other clues, such as the tone of voice."

GRIM FAIRY TALES

Original kiddie stories were filled with rape, murder and cannibalism

By MARTHA ATKINS

If you think kids are exposed to a lot of gore and violence in today's horror movies, check out the original versions of some of our most beloved fairy tales — they're filled with rape, mayhem and murder.

In the modern version of Sleeping Beauty, the beautiful princess lives happily ever after when she is awakened from an enchanted sleep by the kiss of the handsome prince.

But the original version, called Sleeping Beauty, goes much more like this: A king rapes a sleeping princess and leaves her pregnant with his baby. She gives birth to twins while still asleep.

One baby sucks the poisoned flax from her mother's finger and wakes her up.

The king returns to his wife, who tells him what he has done. She demands that he kill the children and cook them for dinner.

The king refuses, but orders the children killed.

The queen tells the cook to kill the children and cook them for dinner. The cook refuses, but kills a young lamb instead.

Pianist blows her brains out — after hiccups ruin concert

By RICK TRACY

A brilliant pianist was so embarrassed when she got the hiccups during her opening night performance that she rushed home in tears — and blew her brains out.

Cops found the body of Nicole Vidaru, 30, sprawled on the bedroom floor of her apartment in Orleans, France. A suicide note said simply, "My career is ruined."

The young pianist had been plagued by hiccups almost daily for the past 15 years. It haunted her day and night and made her life miserable.

Friends said Nicole was worried sick hiccups that she would have a hiccup attack during the concert before a packed house filled with important music critics.

"She took a tranquilizer to settle herself down 15 minutes before going onstage," said a close friend, Lorna Tricot.

Nicole was less than three minutes into her first selection when disaster struck. She hiccupped and struck a wrong note ... and then another and another.

"Then she ran off the stage in tears and turned herself in her dressing room," said Tricot. "She didn't want to talk to anyone." About an hour after the ill-fated performance, Tricot drove the distraught young woman to her apartment. "She seemed to have regained her composure, so I went home," he said.

The hiccups had always been the despair of Nicole's young life. She went to several specialists who said that hiccups were caused by emotional stress, but they couldn't help her. "The only relief that poor woman ever had from the hiccups was from the tranquilizer, chloropromazine," said Tricot. "But even that didn't help her when she needed it the most."

She was reluctant to dine out in public, and there was no romance in her turned life because of her hiccups.

"She had been a virtual recluse all of her adult life ... a life filled with her piano and only a few friends," Tricot said. "What a waste."

'My career is over,' she sobs

10-year-old boy makes a bomb

. . . and plants it in school

A 10-year-old boy made a time bomb out of two model rocket engines and hid it in the rest room of his elementary school — where it was discovered just six minutes before it was set to explode.

By JACK ALEXANDER

Worried sheriff's deputies carefully detonated the homemade bomb in a field after evacuating 900 students and teachers from the school near Lancaster, Calif.

"We were just a few minutes away from disaster," said sheriff's Sgt Bobby Denham. "That bomb was powerful enough to kill and maim a lot of kids."

The brainy youngster taped two model rocket engines together and sealed the exhaust ends closed. Two batteries and a digital clock were supposed to detonate the bomb, according to Sgt Denham.

"He apparently bought the rocket engines at a hobby shop. The engines are filled with powder fuel and look like a firecracker about 3½ inches long and a half-inch in diameter," said Sgt Denham.

Deputies said the boy, who they declined to identify because of his age, told them he built the bomb just to see if he could do it.

"He caused it in a trash can in the boys' rest room because he didn't think it would go off. Fortunately, two other boys found it and told the principal," said Sgt Denham.

The youngster said he learned how to make the bomb by watching the TV show MacGyver. "But producers of the show say they haven't shown any segments that tell people how to make a bomb," said Sgt. Denham. "We have charged the boy with manufacturing an explosive."

Life is a series of close shaves

The average male spends 3,000 hours — or more than 125 full days of his life — shaving! According to researchers from the Schick Company, the average man's face has about 30,000 whiskers and his beard would grow to be almost 30 feet long if he did not trim it during his lifetime.

Do you drive people up the wall?

. . . take this easy quiz and find out

Have you ever wondered why some people always seem to rub you the wrong way? And have you ever considered that you may be a constant irritation to others? Well, here's a quickie test that will clear up any question about how you rate on that score.

Think carefully and answer the following questions honestly, with a Yes or No.

1. When a hostess serves you an appetizing dish, do you tell her how you had a superior one in a restaurant?

2. Do you brag about the big deals you know of the [illegible] players you've spotted?

3. Do you often accept invitations and then turn them down at the last minute?

4. Do you claim to have the inside dope on many things?

5. Have you some more important things that you constantly talk about?

6. Do you correct the behavior, language or dress of your friends?

7. If you buy something new, do you tell everyone how much it cost?

8. Do you often tell others they've aged or look tired?

9. Does it take you longer than an hour to buy a pair of shoes in your favorite store?

10. Do you boast that you are an expert in some field — such as running sports, the arts?

11. Is the state of your health or a previous illness or operation one of your favorite topics of conversation?

12. Do you try to convert others to your way of life?

13. Do you expound at length about the superior qualities of your religious beliefs?

14. Isn't easier for you to convert an idea than to admit an error?

15. At a party are you usually the first to arrive and the last to leave?

SCORING:

15 to more: Yes, indeed! You have a well-developed talent for getting on the nerves of others. People are far from joyous when they see you coming and most of your stories fall on disbelieving ears.

8-30: Yes answers: You're just an average irritant, and are probably saved by friends who understand and like you in spite of your faults.

1 or less: Yes answers: You seldom rattle your friends or co-workers. People come to you with their problems because you won't lecture, dominate or distract your own troubles in bringing them.

bird put under 24-hour guard

Neighborhood lynch mob targets yakking parrot!

A loudmouth parrot was guarded around the clock during his trial for disturbing the peace because riled-up neighbors wanted to ring the little rascal's neck.

"We were concerned. There were some really scary threats," said Hans Erickson, whose pet parrot, Wally, was the object of the angry neighbors' wrath.

The pesky parrot was accused of disturbing the peace, ruining a neighbor's health and causing property values to fall by squawking, loitering and jabbering outside his owner's house in Mill Valley. Nobody spoke against Wally and his owner said the blabber bag hardly "screeching" squawks were like dog barks or the blathering gabs of the blabbers" and refused his wife to have a heart attack.

Wally, like the rest of his owner's house and was often locked outside whenever he felt like it. "He always rides both horses and perches on the windows so he can sit," said Erickson.

Twenty witnesses testified against the rowdy bird and the patriot of the trial.

"I could no longer trust my wife and to kill that bird," one neighbor testified.

"I proved that my pet wasn't really him," said another.

"If I thought I could have gotten by with it, we would be preparing to Wally in the past tense," said a third neighbor.

Because feelings were running so high against Wally, a lowly court bailiff was assigned to stand by his cage during the trial. At night, Erickson slept next to the cage. Half way through the trial, lawyers for both sides reached a settlement. Wally will be allowed out only on alternate summer weekends.

If Erickson violated the agreement, the big-mouthed bird would be banished from the neighborhood forever.

"I'm not happy with the settlement but I can live with it," Erickson admitted. "My reporter I didn't speak for Wally."

Joined a neighbor, "You don't have to speak for THAT bird, Bernice, you couldn't speak loud enough anyway."

How to juggle job & family — without losing your mind

By MARIEN ATKINS
Staff writer

Good news for working moms. It is possible to balance your career, home and family and still keep your sanity with some tips from the experts.

In The Working Mother's Survival Kit (Quail Press, $9.95), author Mary Ann Foley tells working moms how to make their life easier and happier by getting the most out of their job and family.

● Ask "Does it need to be done?" If not, forget it. Your time is valuable — don't waste it doing jobs nobody noticed or cares about.

● When delegating household chores to family members, be specific. Don't just say, "Help clean the house." Say instead, "Please dust all the table tops. A thorough job is necessary."

● Accept the fact that the house does not have to be perfect at all times. Relax. A little clutter is okay.

● Select your entire week's wardrobe the weekend before. Make sure a complete outfit for each day is ready to put on. Hang them all together in one place in your closet so you can easily find everything.

● Save one half hour daily after dinner to devote to being with your children. Read, play or just chat.

● Praise your children for helping around the house.

● Spend time alone with your husband. Get out of the house without the kids.

● If you can afford it, hire a cleaning person to help out with the housework.

● Avoid cooking by buying partially-cooked meals.

● Plan your workday the day before. Make your "To Do" list for tomorrow at the end of today.

● Understand your own daily rhythms. Are you a day person or an evening person? Plan your most difficult jobs for your "peak time."

● Keep a family "To Do List" on a bulletin board. Allow each family member to select his/her favorite chores.

● Plan a week's worth of menus at a time. Keep it simple.

● Post your grocery shopping list where everyone can write down what is needed when it is first noticed.

● Have a back up person to help out in case of emergencies. Enjoy an old hobby or start a new one. Take time to work out. Set all work aside for one day and just have fun.

YOU can make your life easier and happier by following these tips from the experts.

life snuffed out by senseless murder at snazzy high-rise

Beautiful lady doc clubbed to death in parking garage

Carolyn Warrick's life was like a fairy tale. At 29, the bright young woman was not only beautiful but a successful doctor as well. She had lots of friends, a loving family and was planning to be married.

But Carolyn didn't live happily ever after. Her life was snuffed out in a vicious act of violence by an unknown killer who attacked her in an underground parking garage and bashed in her skull.

"It's just tragic," said Det. Mike Davis of the Toronto, Canada, police department. "She was special. She was hopeful of bright and had a family who loved her.

"She was run down in the prime of her life when everything was going her way and she had every reason to live. That's what makes her murder so horrible."

On the evening Carolyn was killed, the 29-year-old fiancée of Randy Lovett had gone to a Super Bowl party and she drove his car to have dinner with one of her brothers and his family.

Carolyn returned home safely from dinner but later on she went out again, probably in response to an automatic teller machine. It was as she was walking to the elevator in the parking garage below the high-rise condominium where she lived with Lovett that Carolyn met her killer.

A maintenance worker and his wife found the badly beaten woman lying dead in a pool of blood as they were coming out of the elevator.

"She was badly beaten about the head, probably with a crowbar or a pipe," said Det. Davis. "There was so much damage to her face that the countenance was who found her thought she was Chinese."

Since her purse was missing, authorities believe robbery may have been a motive in the attack. They have set up a composite post of the murder site and are circulating a sketch of a man wanted for questioning in the killing. So far, no arrests that because he was with it and around the building on the evening she was murdered," said Det. Davis. "As of yet he hasn't come forward, but we're committed to solving this crime, no matter how long it takes."

Carolyn was so loved that more than 500 family and friends came to see her laid to rest. She is buried next to her mother who died last year.

Now Carolyn's family is facing the hard task of trying to get their lives back together again and face life without her energetic presence.

"Nothing can prepare you for this," said the slain woman's father, Art Warrick, 71. "What you do is look the bad parts in the back of your brain.

Kiddie rape victims vow revenge — and get it 10 years later!

By SUSAN JIMISON

Accused child molester David Kirsch is charged with 40 counts of rape and he's facing years in prison, according to officials — thanks to a vow made by his terrified victims a decade ago.

The girls were playing hopscotch with their best friends in Kirsch's backyard and swore they'd get the man who had sexually abused them when they were 7 or 8 years old, police say.

World exclusive interview blows [redacted] life of sin

Saddam's gay lover tells all!

HERO Saddam gives the smoochy chief boyfriend Terry a hug

By LAUREL ROWE

Staphappy Saddam Hussein is a spineless sissy who made whoopee with his male military advisers, peed through Little Lulu comic books — and cowered in his bunker sucking lollipops as U.S. warplanes bombarded Baghdad!

Those shocking revelations were made by Saddam's gay playmate Terry Hemsath, who spent four weeks holed up in the dictator's stuffy private bunker before escaping to France in late February.

In a shocking worldwide exclusive interview, Terry told Weekly World News that the...

• Fearful his country's top military and political leaders would satisfy his perverted sexual desires — and personally executed anyone who rejected his advances.

• Sat in his jewelry-cluttered Baghdad, hugging his knees to his chest, chanting prayers and sucking on raspberry lollipops during Allied bombing raids on the capital.

• Often wore ladies' undies beneath his macho military uniform, and has been known to get dolled up like a Sam Fratterelli drag queen in thigh boots, a miniskirt and gaudy makeup.

• Has a most passionate crush on Cuban kingpin Fidel Castro, whom Saddam calls "the most handsome and brilliant man of our time."

"He had pictures of Fidel plastered all over the walls of his secret bunker in Greece and his bunker in Baghdad," Terry told our reporter. "And he admitted to me more than once that he is wildly in love with the man."

• Has a secret cache of more than 2,000 paper books that he reads for hours on end.

"He likes Batman and The Avengers, but he's particularly crazy about Little Lulu," Terry said.

The WEEKLY revealed that when Saddam was a guest on our Dec. 11, 1990, issue where we published photos of the cheeky fellow cavorting with security chief Terry, 36, at a bathhouse on the Greek island of Rhodes.

After those pictures of me and Saddam came out things started getting a little too hot for me in Baghdad," recalled the limp-wristed Frenchman.

"When Saddam's wife Sajida found out, she was very upset, particularly after the war started and he took me into the bunker to live with him while she stayed at home.

"Finally, Sajeda got word to me that she would help me get out of the bunker safely and return to my home in France. If I refused to leave, she said, she would see to it that I was shot dead."

Trembling Terry arrived in Paris February 21 and immediately agreed to spill the beans on his lethal former lover.

"I loved Saddam but I lived in constant terror that I was going to be executed by him because he is totally crazy," said the gifted escapee. "He loves to watch people die in the most painful ways imaginable."

In addition to his other astounding revelations, Terry said the dictator dictator

• Is so sadistic he often throws his enemies into a vat of scalding acid just to hear their blood-curdling screams.

• Never ate a meal without drinking at least two glasses of imported white wine — ignoring a Muslim law banning all forms of alcohol consumption.

• Dragged his cronies into round-the-clock games of Chinese checkers and thought he was a chimp — because his pals knew anybody who beat him would be shot on the spot.

Undertaker offers cut-rate funerals

Funerals in France have gotten so expensive that an enterprising businessman decided to make them more affordable by opening up a new "Supermarket of Death"!

The cut-rate funeral parlor is the first of its kind in Paris and offers headstones, artificial flowers and a huge selection of low-priced coffins, says owner Michel Tardieu.

Shot between the eyes — and he walks away!

Unlucky Hon Covey was inside his house when he was hit right between the eyes by a bullet fired by a neighbor trying to kill a pesky squirrel!

Fortunately, the 46-year-old man only suffered a flesh wound from the 38-caliber rifle ball as he Lakewood, Missouri, home.

"I was actually looking at the wall almost at the spot where that bullet came through," said Covey. "Boom! It was just like, say 'Boom' the bullet was going through the wall."

After realizing he'd been shot, the bewildered victim drove himself to the hospital for treatment.

"If it had been a quarter-inch lower, it would have broken your nose,'" said Covey. "If it had been a quarter of an inch to the left or right, it probably would have slid in your eye. If it had been a quarter-inch lower, it would have broken your nose,'" said Covey.

To be the mayor of this town — just win the limbo contest!

You don't have to know anything about anything to be mayor of a tiny jungle village in northeastern Brazil — just win the annual limbo contest and the job is yours.

By SCOTTY PAUL

"People laugh at our town but we have no crime, our streets are clean and there is plenty of food and a warm bed for everyone," said Mayor Jose da Silva.

Silva has been mayor of the town of 1,435 people for the past four years, but he may yield to a more agile neighbor when contest time rolls around in December.

The limbo contest actually is an acrobatic dance that involves bending over backwards and walking forward under a horizontal pole. The pole is lowered closer to the ground each time contestants make a successful pass under it.

Jose has topped 10 other candidates each of the last four years by passing under the lowest bar.

The limbo contest in Vigia has become an annual festival as well as the town's election.

For forty years, a century ... members of our small society ... Mayor Gerardo Vargas ... a reporter for the Journal ... Brazil.

"They don't recognize the new plays and our town begins to suffer from their ridiculous reasoning," he said.

Frustrated by the attitude of their elders, the young people ... of the town voted overwhelmingly ... angry adults ... [illegible] ... mayor in a recent runoff.

"We have two people who have lived in my native Ipanema and both are interested in being mayor," said José.

"Selecting our leader in a limbo contest seems to bring this town closer together," Vargas said.

BACK in 1962, the Limbo was a popular dance among American college students. Here an unidentified girl passes under the pole at a Fort Lauderdale beach party.

Chef in hot water over lottery flimflam

By JACK ALEXANDER

An elderly chef promised neighborhood kids new bikes when he took a day off to collect a $1.8 million Instant Lucky Jackpot — and then cops charged him with forging the winning ticket.

When Antonio Lugo walked into the New Jersey lottery office in Trenton he was holding what appeared to be a displacer for a winning ticket.

But after hearing clues at the ticket officials realized it was purchased on September 13 and not the 3rd Lugo is accused of changing the date.

Lugo, 64, had told his pals that he needed a day off from his job as a Philadelphia chef to cash in the ticket.

"I couldn't believe it. I started to cry. When he told us he had won, I was so happy for him," said a neighbor.

10,000 U.S. babies born daily!

By MICHAEL TODD

Did you know that Americans gobble 75 acres of pizza every day — and that the only natural swimming stroke for humans is the dog paddle?

That's just a sample of the fascinating trivia NEWS reporters have run across while scouring the globe for hot stories. Here's more:

● The world's first submarine was built by Dutchman Cornelis Drebbel in 1620 and was made of leather.

● The sequoia was known as both fruit and vegetable until 1980, when the U.S. Supreme Court ruminated that it was, in fact, a vegetable.

● People cry most between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. and are usually watching television or movies when they break down.

● The strongest language to the public is "The Daily Sun."

● Contrary to popular belief, fish do drink water, usually while eating.

● Jeffrey L. Warwick set the record for most consecutive push-ups — 33,291 in Buffalo, N.Y., on June of 1987.

● Every day in America 300 women have their breasts enlarged, 110 perform penis babies in and 14,000 babies are born, farm animals generate six billion tons of manure, and [illegible] cavities [illegible] wonderful kids.

● The [illegible] of pizza [illegible] Hut [illegible] glass and [illegible] legs of [illegible].

● Most people who live to be older than 100 don't [illegible] from [illegible] they [illegible] to their willpower, [illegible] the key ingredient [illegible] they [illegible].

● The number of nations in the world has changed 78 times since 1816.

● The common snail can travel 33 feet a day just over a foot an hour.

● The longest words regularly used to be in ordinary use are "disproportionableness" and "unantitheticalness."

There are longer words in the English language that no one has ever used, not even eggheads [illegible] to use them.

● Southerners eat more canned peas, fruit and fruit than do folks in any other part of the country.

● Inventors have developed a new metal alloy that actually melts in water.

● A human being would have to add 10 millimeters a second, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year for 31 years to solve a mathematical problem that a new NASA supercomputer can do — in one second.

● The average height of a medieval knight was 5 feet 4 inches.

BIZARRE GETAWAY!

A desperate drunk driver nearly drowned, police say, when he jumped into an icy bay to avoid arrest.

Police in Suffolk County, N.Y., say the 30-year-old man was stopped and arrested for driving while intoxicated, but broke away and dove into Great South Bay Cops [illegible] him to swim to shore. But instead he swam away and was lost to sight, police say. Twenty minutes later he was spotted floating facedown in the water. He regained consciousness after being pulled from the bay, vomiting up to the hospital according to authorities.

Drug dealer busted because he couldn't read a map!

By JACK ALEXANDER

A stupid drug courier got caught because he tried to cross the border into Canada from Buffalo, N.Y. — but he was actually 156 miles away in Syracuse, N.Y.

Dope thought he'd crossed border — he was 156 miles off

"I call it the case of the confused drug dealer," said Assistant U.S. Attorney John Brunetti.

"This guy flew into Syracuse thinking he was landing in Buffalo. That was his first mistake. After that — it was downhill from there."

Valentino Montilla was arrested with 10 ounces of cocaine and heroin after he went searching on the west side of Syracuse for the Peace Bridge to Canada.

Unfortunately for the dumbo drug dealer, the Peace Bridge is in Buffalo.

Unable to find Niagara Street, which leads to the bridge in Buffalo, the 43-year-old fool got a cabbie to drive him back to Syracuse's Hancock International Airport.

That's where he ran into a U.S. Border Patrol agent, who arrested Montilla when he couldn't produce immigration documents.

A search uncovered the drugs. Montilla was later found guilty and sentenced to 27 months in jail by U.S. District Judge Howell Munson.

"I have no idea how Mr. Montilla was planning to get into Canada, but he sure couldn't cross any bridge to get there from Syracuse," said Brunetti. "That would have had to be a very, very long bridge."

Did Idi Amin EAT his lawyer?

'My husband was barbecued and served on a buffet,' charges attorney's wife

A lawyer representing disgust former dictator Idi Amin in a cancel custody case has vanished into thin air — and friends believe evil Idi ate him!

Cops say ill-fated attorney Henry Bellaire, 34, was seen arguing with the exiled Ugandan president in Amin's backyard three weeks ago — and he hasn't been seen since.

"We know that weirdo killed and ate lots of people back in Uganda," said Henry's panicky pal Philippe Dore.

"Now poor Henry's gone without a trace, and we have pretty good evidence the same thing's happened to him."

The bizarre tale began last fall when odd-behavior Idi got into a bloody brawl with a neighbor in Bahrain, the Persian Gulf country he now calls home.

"The screwball got in a fight with his Arab neighbor over a mangy old camel," Frankie Philippe told reporters.

Wild-eyed Idi wound up with the camel but the guy next door died vet to get the hungry beast back. So the hefty 1-ton glutton hired Henry to help him win legal custody of the shabby animal.

"He came to my boutique because Henry was one of the few non-Arab lawyers in Bahrain — and Idi said he didn't trust anybody who wore a towel for a hat," recalled the lawyer's worried wife Danielle.

"They had a hearing in the camel case and Idi apparently didn't like the way my husband was handling things," said Danielle.

"He was yelling at Henry and running at him through the whole thing.

"Afterwards, Henry called and said he was going out to Idi's place in straighten things out. That was the last I ever heard from him."

Later, neighbors saw Beefy Idi arguing with the lawyer near the barbecue pit in Amin's backyard.

"That night there was a big barbecue at Idi's house, and we're pretty sure his guests unwittingly helped him dispose of Henry's body," said distraught Danielle.

"We think every one of those people unknowingly ate a piece of my husband."

FOR WEEK OF
Mon. Apr. 1 – Sun. Apr. 7

By Countess Sophia Saheb

ARIES
Mar. 21-Apr. 19

Keep on marin' and shakin'.

Activity around you this week should satisfy your urge to be on the go.

You should receive some unexpected assistance in a project now occupied with money matters.

Persons at a distance might play an important part in your future life.

Several enjoyable things should be waiting in the wings for you this week.

A loved one could get argumentative. Don't let this spoil a good time.

TAURUS
Apr. 20-May 20

Something's in the wind. Things could be coming and you'd best be ready for it.

Don't be surprised if your financial situation looks as if it's going to take a sudden turn for the better.

Your fascinating side should make you the life of the party. A happy period is overdue. Enjoy!

This might be an excellent week for starting new ventures.

Check facts before starting and recheck details as you proceed.

Work alone if possible.

GEMINI
May 21-June 20

Hold your tongue this week.

People, especially your superior, could have trouble understanding what you really mean. So, don't say anything that could be misunderstood.

The same thing goes for money matters. Keep your purse fastened up except for necessities. Caution at this time could mean prosperity in a few weeks.

All the signs point to dreams coming true.

Exercise patience with all.

CANCER
June 21-July 22

If you stand to inherit your guide, you'll have to do something about settling the loot.

Take advantage of every opportunity offered you.

You'd do well to let yourself be guided by one you trust.

Prepare to work hard at love relationship running. Things that may seem of little matter to you are probably very important to a partner.

Avoid going out on a financial limb now.

LEO
July 23-Aug. 22

Compromise, compromise!

A little give and take may be in order to help a troubled relationship.

Your independence may be a cause of resentment or envy. The person in question would like to feel needed.

Everything may not go exactly as planned this week. You shouldn't lose by this, but don't expect any great gains.

This disappointment should be temporary. You may not be in a party mood, but accept all invitations.

VIRGO
Aug. 23-Sept. 22

You should find little cause for complaint this week.

Don't be surprised if things go from good to better over the next few days.

You should find [illegible] to negotiate. Minor problems should resolve themselves.

A little compromise could also make for easier relationships.

Think about spending the weekend recovering your equilibrium. Take a complete break from pressures, if you can.

LIBRA
Sept. 23-Oct. 22

Make sure your dreams are in line with reality.

Don't waste your valuable time chasing the impossible.

A surprise could be in store for you this week. Don't be caught off guard.

A loved one could help, if you're willing to share your problems.

The warmth found in sharing difficulties or dreams can help in building a stronger relationship.

Obstacles should disappear before your newfound strength now.

SCORPIO
Oct. 23-Nov. 21

Listen up! A little luck could matter tonight as your date wonders what you think.

A friend may have some sound advice that could put you and yours on the path to a better tomorrow. Cast your fears aside and swing into action now.

The less you allow things to bother you, the better.

Be especially sensitive to the needs of one who may whine while hiding tears.

Ask the right question of a lover.

SAGITTARIUS
Nov. 22-Dec. 21

Stop barking a lover! It's time for you to think for yourself.

You should finally have a chance to improve conditions around you. Think about either changing your residence or perhaps remodel an addition to your present home.

A relative you may have been at odds with could be more approachable now.

Reconciliation is always possible if both persons are willing to try.

The power of the family bond should be strong this week.

CAPRICORN
Dec. 22-Jan. 19

Don't give up! The frustration you may feel this week should be only temporary.

A solution is so simple that you're amazed it! Think things through again with that in mind.

Promptness is very important. Make every effort to be on time.

Don't rush a relationship. The person in question may not be ready to make the kind of commitment you think you want.

Make the first move and pleasant surprises could await you.

AQUARIUS
Jan. 20-Feb. 18

Go slow! Approach an explosive situation with caution. Use care when suggesting a solution.

Hold tight to your values this week. Letting them slide — for any reason — isn't a clever move!

A desire may be fulfilled with little effort on your part, but you should still give it your best.

Use tact to avoid clashes. This may be necessary if you want to have harmony at home.

Find a positive outlet for high energy this week.

PISCES
Feb. 19-Mar. 20

Uh, oh! Pay no attention to gossip.

The ability to weather any storm is one of your strong points.

Cool and practical thinking solves most problems, as you're well aware.

Someone may bring some added financial excitement to your life this week. If you're given numbers, use them with discretion.

Don't just dream about the future. The most positive thing you can do is do it before the week ends.

Someone may throw up eye on you — wish luck!

If your birthday is this week . . .

Good luck should be with you this year.

Stick to your guns. If you're right, you're right. Don't allow a change of attitude to disturb you or your plans.

There should be a strong chance of overnight success or a financial deal.

There's usually never a dull moment around you and this quality should draw friendship's magnet. Have more faith in your abilities and so will the world.

A simple phrase like "I love you and need you" could work wonders for your romantic life.

It should be possible to have the best of all worlds this year so enjoy!

Wife pleads for romeo doc — who tried to kill her!

By JOE BERGER

Diabolical doctor Richard Archer drugged his devoted wife Elaine and tried to murder her so he could carry on a passionate affair with a gorgeous young nurse.

But despite a hair-raising escape from death, strangling Elaine says she still worships her heartless hubby — and she's begging a judge to let the creep come back home!

"Richard needs kindness and love, not punishment," pleads Elaine, 38.

"He's mixed-up, but I'm sure he never really meant to harm me."

The vile of deadly deceit and undying love began when romeo Richard, a psychiatrist 10 years her senior, began dating nurse Shirley Nelson.

The dastardly doc decided to get Elaine out of the way by spiking her 38th birthday cake with tranquilizers, strangling her with a noose, then stringing her up to make the death look like suicide.

The drugs gave unexpected strength. Tranquilizers and alcohol seemed to have increased their potency.

Finally, ruthless Richard was convinced he'd given the mother of his two kids just enough drugs to put her under. So he tiptoed into their bedroom and slipped the noose around her neck.

"But just as I was going to pull it tight, Elaine opened her eyes and kind of looked at me," the psychiatrist-hubby later told police in Essex, England.

"She was too drugged to fight back, but I simply couldn't kill her with her looking me in the eye. So I just turned and walked out. In my mind I knew it was all over for her." Neighbors later found the drugged-up Elaine staggering into Elaine's bedroom but didn't know her and the Greenbush doctor brought home.

DOC Richard Archer pleaded guilty of attempted murder.

She woke up as he put noose around her neck

"I STILL love him," says Elaine after her brush with death.

Burglary turns into casket case

When a burglar alarm sounded at a funeral home, cops searched the place and found Charles Conners — hiding in a casket.

Conners told police in Memphis, Tenn., he had gone to visit his sister's grave in a cemetery next to the mortuary about 2:30 a.m. and accidentally set off the alarm in the funeral home. He said he'd been drinking and didn't remember climbing in the coffin. Conners said he didn't appreciate being asked if he was "some kind of pervert" by cops.

Conners pleaded guilty to burglary and was sentenced to two years in prison.

Miracle mineral keeps you fit as a fiddle — forever

YOUTH PILL IS FINALLY HERE!

By DOROTHY LARSON-DALE

Scientists say that selenium — a mineral you can buy in health food stores — significantly slows the aging process and will keep you looking and feeling young years longer!

The astonishing discovery was made after a 25-year research project conducted by teams of dedicated chemists at the University of California.

The researchers described selenium as an essential nutrient found in seafoods and meats.

In addition to retarding the body's aging process, it also guards against organ damage caused by smoking and drinking.

An environmental research chemist at the university's food and science department said an insufficient amount of selenium in the human body can cause crippling muscle degeneration.

But it is the discovery that selenium retards aging and prolongs youth that has electrified the scientific world.

"In the test tube, selenium is a powerful protector against oxidation," declared a biochemist involved in the amazing research project. "And oxidation is believed to be one of the main causes of aging."

An independent researcher, Robert Evans — whose studies were correlated in those of the above chemists — said the mineral preserves the elasticity of body tissue by delaying oxidation of polyunsaturated fatty acids, thus stalling the aging process.

"Selenium was once regarded as not needed by the human body," Evans told The NEWS. "It was even thought to be dangerous.

"It is now going to be one of the ways we maintain our health and prevent degenerative disease.

"But the outstanding research done in California will put those notions to rest.

"In addition to prolonging youth, there is strong evidence that selenium taken in daily doses reduces the risk of breast, lung, prostate, colon and ovarian cancers and maintains a healthy heart."

Selenium, also found in minute amounts in the human body, is sold over-the-counter in most health food stores and in some drugstores. A bottle of 250 tablets, each containing 50 mcgs. of selenium, sells for about $10 to $15. The general dosage is one or

Michael Jackson defeats brain cancer with a special grain diet. Fidel Castro moves into a mansion in Beverly Hills. And Hawaii sinks like a stone in the South Pacific!

These are just a few of the mind-blowing events that I see coming to pass between now and the year 2000.

Here's more:

● In 1994 Lou Gehrig's disease is traced to a virus carried by lap dogs.

● Marijuana replaces petroleum as nation's chief source of energy in 1998.

● In the summer of 1999 joggers and bikers get a break — a drink that causes human skin to glow a bright green in the dark! Nighttime runs are safe and fun.

● Russia's crumbling economy forces the Kremlin to sell one-third of its land to the Japanese in the fall of 1994. Tokyo fat cats quickly seize the opportunity to turn the ramshackle Soviet factories and farms into money-making dynamos.

● Taken by the capful four times a day, a tasteless extract allows you to live a healthy, happy and active life 100 years or more, experts report in 1993.

● Dolly Parton undergoes a bizarre "reverse liposuction" operation to add bulk to her body as she rush hold up her breasts in 1994.

● Global warming turns out to be a welcome event for most of the U.S. as Midwesterners bask in a subtropical climate and gardeners as far north as Philadelphia grow palm trees as early as 1998.

● Genetic engineers in the mid-1990s will invent a new insect that preys on mosquitos and flies but doesn't bother humans. TV ratings plummet as Americans turn out in record numbers for picnics, walking, bicycling and other outdoor activities.

● Spray-on clothes are introduced at a Paris fashion show in April, 1999. For use after the shower, these unisex outfits-in-a-can come in a variety of colors and textures, with feathers being the most popular add-on. At the end of the day, the wearer simply takes another shower and washes off the whole get-up.

FINALLY! Elvis comes out of hiding

The most exciting prediction for the next 10 years involves none other than The King of Rock 'n' Roll himself — Elvis Presley.

Balding but revitalized, he comes out of hiding on Jan. 8, 1993 — his 58th birthday — and explains why he faked his death in 1977. The King goes on to say that he spent almost 16 years traveling incognito and meets daughter Lisa Marie's baby, Danielle, for the first time. He also releases an autobiography and new record, both enti-
